Title of the Talk Ethics: Doing the right thing at the right time.

General Note: You must use proper grammar. You must avoid use of slang. You must write legibly. Quality is a factor, no mark outs.

1. List of key points made in the talk (Five or more – each point must be a complete thought).

1. Ethics is an important aspect of being a professional because as we begin our careers we are going to be presented with situations where being unethical can lead to severe damage for to others.
2. Be ethical during your college career because establishing a good foundation of integrity will garner good reputation with your peers who may also be your future coworkers.
3. A Resume is more than just factual history about you, instead it is a means to present yourself to a stranger that allows them to know who you are, what you are about, and if your personality would fit well with the company.
4. It is important to talk about your successes and accomplishments on your resume because this tells the company you want to work for more than just where you have been, but instead what you are capable of.

- 5. Social media is an easy way for others to see what kind of person you are, therefore be ethical in how you participate in these sites because others are always watching.

- 2. Discuss in 1 paragraph (not more than 5 sentences) what the guest speaker said that was most helpful.

Jay's talk about the "imposter" syndrome and how it relates to resumes really helped me see what I struggle with. I definitely have the "imposter" syndrome because I often feel inadequate to my peers and that prevents me from trying to put myself out there for others to evaluate. It is hard for me to make a resume where I feel like I am being the most accurate to my capabilities as possible because I often feel like my accomplishments don't amount to much or are not what a company are looking for. It was nice to hear that I am not the only one in the industry who feels this way and it was helpful to hear about how Jay would construct a resume, which gives me many ideas for my own.
